DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 2/22/05 has been entered.

Response to Amendment

2. The amendment filed 2/22/05 is objected to under 35 U.S.C. 132(a) because it introduces new matter into the disclosure. 35 U.S.C. 132(a) states that no amendment shall introduce new matter into the disclosure of the invention. The added material which is not supported by the original disclosure is as follows: "one or more malodor counteractant materials does not include ascorbic acid or its derivatives". Additionally, the original disclosure teaches ascorbic acid is a preferred material, page 12, lines 12-17. Applicant is required to cancel the new matter in the reply to this Office Action.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Art Unit: 3761

4. Claims 1, 3, 5, 24, and 28-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The material which is not supported by the original disclosure is as follows: "one or more malodor counteractant materials does not include ascorbic acid or its derivatives". Additionally, the original disclosure teaches ascorbic acid is a preferred material, page 12, lines 12-17.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

7. Claims 6, 7, 10-15, and 20-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yabrov USPN 4880417.

As to claims 6, 7, 10-13, and 20-22, Yabrov discloses glycerin and a fragrance as a malodor counteractant material (col. 4, lines 21-24). Yabrov does not specifically disclose his invention as a tampon. Yabrov discloses the glycerin is used for neutralizing odor caused by hydrogen sulfide gas (col. 4, lines 41-43). It is old and well known that hydrogen sulfide gas is one of the gases associated with menstrual fluids. For example, Yi et al. US 2003/0093043 teaches hydrogen sulfide as a chemical produced during menstrual periods (paragraph 0050). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the invention of Yabrov in an article for absorbing menstrual fluids, such as a tampon. Yabrov discloses the malodor counteractant material is present in liquid form (col. 4, lines 26-31). Additionally it is old and well known that glycerin is a natural substance.

Yabrov is silent on the claimed about of counteractant material present in the absorbent. However, one having ordinary skill in the art would be able to determine through routine experimentation the ideal levels malodor counteractant for a particular application.

As to claim 14, Yabrov discloses the fragrance is in liquid form (col. 4, lines 31-32).

As to claims 15 and 23, Yabrov does not disclose the additional malodor counteractant is naturally sourced. Yabrov discloses a fragrance as an additional malodor counteractant and teaches any appropriate material by be used in addition to the glycerin. Many naturally sourced products such as fragrant oils are used as masking agents or perfuming agents in absorbent articles. It would have been within the level of one of ordinary skill in the art to use a naturally sourced masking agent as the additional malodor counteractant.

Allowable Subject Matter

8. Claims 26 and 27 are allowed. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: As to independent claims 26 and 27, the method of deodorizing a vaginal area using the overall claimed combination of a malodor counteract material comprising glycerin and at least one additional malodor counteractant material selected from the claimed Markush group is neither anticipated nor rendered obvious by the prior art of record.
